Where did you hear about EYSO?

The Enfield Young Symphony Orchestra

provides an opportunity for young instrumentalists residing or attending a school in the London Borough of Enfield to perform a wide range of symphonic repertoire to a very high standard.

EYSO has performed at prestigious London venues: Barbican (March 2007) and The Royal Festival Hall (March 2009).

In October 2011 EYSO will be travelling to Germany to continue it's musical and cultural exchange with the Bornheim Music School (near Bonn).

EYSO is currently involved in an exciting 'creative' collaboration with the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra which culminates in April 2012 with two performances with the massed orchestras of three London Boroughs at the Royal Festival Hall and Wembley Arena .

The high standard achieved by EYSO reflects the excellent work and commitment of its members, section tutors and teachers and parents.

The Orchestra is funded by the London Borough of Enfield Education, Children's Services and Leisure Group. It is also supported by the Friends of Enfield Arts Support Service.
